

GASHOLDERS
LONDON

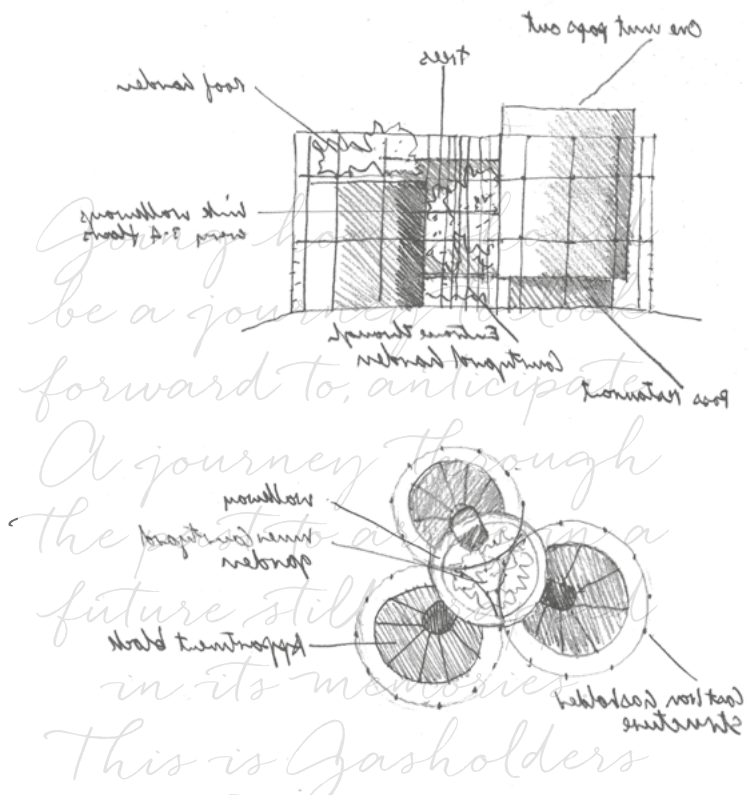

Your home

Going home should be a journey to look forward to, anticipate. A journey through the past to arrive in a future still wrapped in its memories. This is Gasholders London.

The architects of Gasholders, Wilkinson Eyre, have created an extraordinary, ever-changing facade. It will appear to constantly shift and evolve with the light, embraced by its ever-glorious Victorian frame.

The principal entrance is crowned by a cantilevered canopy that leads into the spectacular lobby.

of light flooding
towards you,
of iron-framed
King's Cross
panoramas.

Most of the residences have balconies or terraces with views across the capital, alongside folding, perforated screens for privacy and protection from the sun.

The interiors are a refined marriage of past and present: of warm woods, resin, stone and metals.

Wrapped warmly
in iron, each
apartment's views
provide that
extraordinary link between London's
rich industrial past
and its bright and
vibrant present.

The interior design has been beautifully fashioned and crafted by Jonathan Tuckey Design, with unique and bespoke details and a rich palette of materials.

The Gasholders have nine extraordinary multi-level penthouse apartments. The elegant interiors are individually crafted by world-class interior architects. Each has its own private roof garden.

relax, enjoy and revitalize.*

Above the business lounge lies a sophisticated residents' entertainment suite: a set of elegant rooms containing a contemporary 14 person private screening room, a bar and a sumptuous private dining room.

Designed by award winning landscape architecture practice, Dan Pearson Studio, the lush rooftop garden is a series of open-air spaces for reading, lounging and just watching the world fly by.

*Simply the most extraordinary apartments that sit delightfully beside
the Regent's Canal
amidst the hustle, bustle and sheer excitement of London's creative heart.*
